

Contents

Editorial

Special Issue: Priming and Set (In Russian) .....	4
--	---

Research Papers: Theory

Olga A. Arbekova, Alexey N. Gusev About Matching Concepts of Meaningful Set, Task Set, and Operational Set With Modern English-Language Terms (In Russian) .....	5
Abstract in English .....	23

Discussion

Alexander Asmolov Effects of Set in Forecasting of the Future: Historical Evolutionary Analysis. Commentary on the papers “Set and Unconscious Semantic Priming: Two Different Labels or Two Distinct Phenomena?” by A. Koyfman and “Comparing Two Paradigms and the ‘Prepersonal Level’ of Priming” by M. Filippova (In Russian) .....	26
Abstract in English .....	31
Alexander N. Romaschuk About the Priming of Scientific Terms and the Set towards Solving Scientific Problems (In Russian).....	33
Abstract in English .....	42
Vladimir F. Spiridonov Priming and Set in Problem Solving. Comments on A. Ya. Koyfman’s “Set and Unconscious Semantic Priming: Two Different Labels or Two Distinct Phenomena?” (In Russian) .....	44
Abstract in English .....	50
Natalia S. Kudelkina Every Set is a Priming, but not Each Priming is a Set. Commentary on the papers “Set and Unconscious Semantic Priming: Two Different Labels or Two Distinct Phenomena?” by A. Koyfman and “Comparing Two Paradigms and the ‘Prepersonal Level’ of Priming” by M. Filippova (In Russian).....	52
Abstract in English .....	58
Roman S. Shilko On the Principles of Analysis and Comparison of Set and Unconscious Semantic Priming. Comments on A. Ya. Koyfman’s “Set and Unconscious Semantic Priming: Two Different Labels or Two Distinct Phenomena?” and M. G. Filippova’s “Comparing Two Paradigms and the ‘Prepersonal Level’ of Priming” (In Russian).....	60
Abstract in English .....	64